

The Ultimate HR Battle: Part II — The Backup Mainframe

[SCENE START]

Shawn: "Okay, well, while the entire administrative building is probably being taped off by the National Guard, we're gonna try to have a little bit of structural stability here. Colin, are you there?"

Colin: "Yeah, I'm here. I'm just watching your file transfer line go up and down. It's at 4%."

Shawn: "Dude, it's been at 4% for twenty minutes because my local disk C is literally choking on its own cache files! Why does it do this? Every time I try to unzip a folder, it acts like I'm asking it to calculate the mass of the sun!"

Colin (imitating Brenda Savic): "Because you don't have the Savic tag enabled, dumbass! Hmp! Your system network is weaker than Misty's cardio!"

Shawn: "Oh my god, don't start the voices again, I'm actually trying to clean my desktop before I have to leave for Meijer. I have eleven minutes."

Brenda (suddenly blasting into the conversation): "Who said my name?! Hmp! You think a little administrative suspension can keep me out of the local area network? Please! I taught computer apps before you were even a child folder, Shawn! Woah!"

Colin: "Wait, Brenda, how are you even talking right now? Didn't the HR agents literally tie you to a bookshelf?"

Brenda: "Yeah, they tried! But let me tell you something right now, those ropes were made of standard cotton blend! They just can't handle the sheer friction of pure greatness! I just flexed my deltoids and the whole shelf collapsed! Pshit! Now I'm sitting in the back of a purple Jeep using a stolen hotspot!"

Shawn: "Why are you in a Jeep? Whose Jeep is that?"

Misty (interrupts, sounding incredibly muffled): "Ehm, actually, it's my Jeep! And um, yeah, please get your foot off my center console, Brenda! My essential oils are getting crushed against the gear shift!"

Colin: "Hold on, Misty? You died. Like, dramatically. You flatlined over a breakfast metaphor."

Misty: "Ehm, well, yeah, but then the EMTs arrived and they told me that my thick layer of body fat actually insulated my vital organs from the gunfire! Ehm, yeah, just from a biological perspective, it was basically like natural body armor! Ehmeheh!"

Brenda: "Hmp! Lucky break, fatass! Next time I'm aiming for the mainframe! Colin, tell her she's an idiot."

Colin: "She's an idiot, but honestly Brenda, you're the one driving a stolen vehicle while actively fleeing the school board. That's like a tier-one administrative violation."

Brenda: "Oh, a violation? Wowowowow! What are they gonna do, give me a detention? I AM THE BOARD. Without me, who's gonna align the digital design curriculum? Toni? Skip? Skip doesn't even know what a JPEG is! He thinks it's a type of imported grape! Hmp!"

Shawn: "Hey, would you look at that... my file explorer just crashed again. Great. Now the screen is completely white. I love Windows. I love Bill Gates. I want to throw this entire motherboard into a lake."

Colin (impersonating Misty): "Ehm, actually Shawn, if you throw it in the lake, the floppy disks will get soggy! Uh, yeah!"

Misty: "Ehm, Colin?! Stop stealing my intellectual property! I am the only one allowed to make sad floppy disk noises! Ehm, also, Brenda is taking a sharp turn! Oh my god, the eggs! The grocery bags are spilling!"

Brenda: "Shut the fuck up back there! I'm trying to network our escape route! We're going to Waukesha! Karl knows a guy who can forge teaching credentials on a Linux operating system!"

Shawn (in a weird, seducing type of voice): "Uh, keep talking about Linux, I like being technically degraded, heheheheh, tell me my RAM is insufficient, UHHHEH..."

Brenda (genuinely weirded out): "Uhhh... okay... Shawn, you are deeply disturbed. Like, seriously. Even for a cashier."

Colin: "Yeah, ignore him, he does that when his battery hits 15%. But wait, if you guys are heading to Waukesha, you're passing the Meijer on Highway 164. Shelley's probably standing in the parking lot right now waiting for Shawn."

Shelley (clicking onto the line with a loud pop): "Oh, you betcha I am! Eh? Shawn, I see your purple Jeep friend speeding through the pharmacy drive-thru lane! What the hell is going on over there?!"

Shawn: "Shelley, I swear I'm trying to leave my house, but my desktop environment is completely frozen and I can't find my car keys because Colin told me they were in my recycling bin!"

Colin: "They were in your pictures folder, child folder. Ha. Chuckles."

Shelley: "Now listen here, Shawn, Angel is already real upset because the shopping carts are piling up in the intersection, and if you don't get your backend over here in three minutes, your credentials are going right back into the shredder! Bye bye! Right? Pshit!"

Brenda: "Wow, what an ugly ass bitch! Hmp! Telling my accomplice what to do? Hey Shelley, why don't you look out your little manager booth window and see what a real educator looks like! WOAH!"

(Loud screeching tires sound effect over the phone)

Misty: "BRENDA NO! DON'T RAM THE CART CORRAL! EHM! CRASHING SOUNDS!"

Colin: "Did you just weaponize a mid-size SUV against a grocery store?"

Brenda: "Collateral damage, Colin! That corral was poorly structured anyway! Didn't have any layout design! Just basic metal piping! Hmp! My Savic Operating System handles impacts way better than that!"

Kaila / Señora F (bursting into the call, sounding highly stressed): "Diego! Diego, por favor, dime que no estás involucrado en este desastre de supermercado! Ay dios mio, there is so much negative energy near the bakery department!"

Colin: "Callate, Señora. I'm just the cameraman here. Brenda's the one running Popeye logic in a Meijer parking lot."

Brenda: "Oh, the talking burrito is back! What's the matter, Kaila? Afraid I'm gonna grape all over your lesson plans? I told you not to use the Savic tag in the Spanish hallway! Never listens!"

Kaila: "Señora Savic, your suspension paperwork has already been translated into three languages! You are officially banned from using the faculty microwave!"

Brenda: "Banned?! Hmp! I don't need a microwave! I run on PURE FUCKING GREATNESS. I eat my grapes cold, straight from the vine, the Wangen way! My middle name is God, remember?! You can't microwave a deity!"

Shawn: "Guys, my laptop just made a horrible grinding noise and the blue screen of death popped up. It says 'SYSTEM_THREAD_EXCEPTION_NOT_HANDLED'. What does that even mean?"

Colin: "It means your computer committed suicide to escape this conversation."

Misty (weakly over the rushing wind): "Ehm... guys... I think Brenda pushed me out of the passenger side during the impact... Ehm, yeah, I am currently rolling across the asphalt near the propane tanks... (Sad Misty noises)..."

Brenda: "You'll be fine, fatass! Just roll into a brunch spot! Someone tell her she's an idiot. Hmp!"

Shawn: "Okay, well, my screen is completely black now. The battery is dead. Like all good things, this phone call is coming to an end. I'm walking to work."

Colin: "Bring me back a donut."

Shawn: "No."

Brenda: "WOWWWWWOW."

* * *

Shawn: "Okay, well, my screen is completely dead, but somehow my phone is still routing this entire multi-line disaster through my Bluetooth earbuds while I walk across the parking lot. Colin, are you still there?"

Colin: "Yeah, I'm here. I'm tracking your progress on Find My Friends. You're walking past the automated car wash. Avoid the bakery entrance, Kaila is still pacing back and forth near the registers."

Kaila / Señora F: "Diego! I can hear you! I am not pacing, I am conducting a cultural assessment of the pastry aisle! But there is a giant purple vehicle blocking the fire lane and it is completely disrupting my chakras!"

Brenda: "Hmp! Disrupting your chakras? Pshit! That's called strategic administrative positioning, Kaila! I parked right next to the automatic sliding doors so I have direct access to the mainframe and the snack aisle! Woah!"

Colin (imitating Brenda Savic): "Yeah, because the tech department couldn't handle the Brenda tag, so now she's taking over the Meijer customer service desk! Dumbasses! WOWWWWWOW!"

Brenda: "Hey! Stop doing that voice, Colin, you sound like a broken graphics card! Besides, I don't need to take over customer service—I already programmed the self-checkout kiosks to run on Savic Operating Systems! Every time someone scans a bunch of bananas, the machine just yells 'Hmp! Not as good as grapes!' at them!"

Shawn: "Dude, I am literally ten feet from the entrance and I can already hear the registers malfunctioning from here. My life is an absolute prison. Why does this happen to me? I just wanted to clock in, push some carts, and go home to my vintage basement."

Misty (sounding incredibly distant and out of breath): "Ehm, excuse me... Shawn? If you're near the propane tanks... ehm, could you look down? I am currently wedged between a stack of firewood and a display of summer lawn chairs... Ehm, yeah, my cardiovascular system is operating at roughly 4% capacity right now..."

Colin: "Misty, why are you still at the propane tanks? I thought you rolled toward the bakery."

Misty: "Ehm, well, I tried to! But then a gust of wind caught my poncho and I got caught in a low-speed aerodynamic drift! Ehm, also, Brenda took my phone, so I'm currently speaking into a smart toaster that was sitting in the clearance bin... Ehmehmehm!"

Brenda: "Hmp! Complaining about the poncho? Typical! A real educator uses the elements to her advantage! I once taught an entire section of digital design using nothing but a whiteboard marker and raw intuition! Toni Hillman couldn't do that if her life depended on it! She'd be crying in the teacher's lounge because her margins weren't lined up properly!"

Shawn (in a weird, seducing type of voice): "Uh, keep talking about proper alignment and strict margins, oh yeah, degrade my formatting layout, tell me my paragraph spacing is completely uncalled for, UHHHEH..."

Colin: "Shawn, stop. You're doing it in public now. The greeter is looking right at you."

Shawn (switching back instantly): "I don't care anymore, Colin. My computer crashed, my boss is a Canadian stereotype, and there is a sixty-year-old woman threatening the structural integrity of my workplace. I have reached the end of my rope."

Shelley (over the PA system, her voice echoing through the phone): "Attention Meijer shoppers, eh? Could the owner of the purple Jeep please remove their vehicle from the shopping cart return? And Shawn, if that's you walking through the lobby with your head down, Angel is standing by the service desk with a clipboard and she does NOT look happy, right? Pshit!"

Brenda: "Oh, Shelley thinks she's big talk man now because she has access to the microphone?! Wowowowow! Let me tell you something, sweetheart, I've been projecting my voice across gymnasiums for fifteen years! I don't need a PA system! HAMILTON ADMINISTRATION, YOU ARE ALL NERDS! HMP!"

Colin: "Wow. I think you just vibrated the glass on the vending machines, Brenda."

Kaila: "Ay dios mio! The negativity is shattering the glass! Diego, hide behind the organic avocados! It is the only safe zone left!"

Misty: "Ehm, actually, the avocados are not organic, Kaila... Ehm, yeah, from a grocery clerk's perspective, they're just standard Hass... Uh, also, the firewood stack is shifting! Ooh, sad Misty noises... crashing sounds..."

Shawn: "Okay, well, I am officially at the timeclock. I am swiping my badge. Whatever happens next, it's my word against yours, Colin."

Colin: "I'm still recording, Shawn. This is going right into the system network."

Brenda: "Wrong folder, dumbass! See you in the breakroom! WOAH!"

* * *

Shawn: "Okay, well, I have successfully managed to avoid Angel, my badge scanned on the first try, and I am finally on the floor. The store is actually quiet. No screaming, no gunshots, just nice, calm retail operations. Colin, are you still there?"

Colin: "Yeah, I'm here. I'm just monitoring your audio feed. It sounds remarkably peaceful. Did you actually escape them?"

Shawn: "Yes. I'm at register four right now. I'm completely in my zone. Watch this." (Clears throat) "¡Hola! Buenos días, señora. Sí, el descuento de los aguacates se aplica directamente en la pantalla. Que tenga un buen día."

Colin: "Wow. Look at you go. Dr. Spanish dot com would be proud."

Kaila / Señora F (instantly breaking into the line): "¡Excelente pronunciación, Diego! Oh, wait, you are Shawn. But still! Helping the community in their native tongue! This is what true education looks like, unlike some people who only know how to throw office chairs!"

Brenda (crackling through the Meijer intercom system again): "Hmp! Speaking Spanish to the customers? Pshit! Big deal! Anyone can look up a translation on a baby computer! Let me tell you something right now, Shawn, I can code an entire automated translation matrix in Savickey'n before you can even scan a bag of tortilla chips! Woah!"

Shawn: "Oh my god. Brenda, how are you on the intercom again? I thought security escorted you to the breakroom."

Brenda: "They tried! But your security guard looks like he runs on a 2% battery! I just hit him with a quick Savic shoulder check and took his walkie-talkie! Now I'm in the electronics department trying to see if these display TVs can handle the Brenda tag! Spoiler alert: they can't! They're already freakout out! WOWWWWWOW!"

Colin: "Shawn, look at your lane. Is that who I think it is?"

Misty (wobbling up to register four, covered in grass stains and bits of firewood): "Ehm, hi... yes, hello Shawn... ehm, I would like to purchase these twenty individual eggs and this single, slightly damaged smart toaster... Ehm, yeah, I need to fuel up for my walk back to the high school... Ehmehmehm!"

Shawn (repressing immense panic): "Misty, why are you putting loose, uncartoned eggs directly onto my conveyor belt? They are literally rolling into the scanner mechanism! You're going to jam the scale!"

Misty: "Ehm, well, the carton had structural damage from the Jeep impact! Uh, also, Brenda is actively flashing the electronics department lights on and off! It's giving me severe short-term memory loss... Ehm, wait, where am I? Am I at a brunch club?"

Colin (imitating Brenda Savic): "You're at Meijer, dumbass! Tell her she's an idiot, Shawn!"

Brenda: "Hey! I heard that, Colin! Shawn, lock down lane four! We're forming a administrative blockade! Shelley is coming down the main aisle with a walkie-talkie and she looks like she's about to deport me back to Canada!"

Shelley (shouting from across the store, her voice bleeding into Shawn's headset): "Shawn! Why is the electronics department broadcasting grape history documentaries on every screen?! And why is Mrs. Draeger trying to return a melted toaster at a regular register, eh?! Woww... Clean up your department right now!"

Shawn (in a weird, seducing type of voice): "Uh, yeah, keep yelling at me over the PA system, Shelley... degrade my cashier performance metrics, tell me my scanning speed is completely uncalled for, UHHHEH..."

Colin: "Shawn, the customer in your line is staring at you. Switch it back."

Shawn (gasping for air): "I can't, Colin! Tensions are escalating! The eggs are cracking on the belt! Kaila is arguing with the bakery manager in fluent Spanish, Brenda is currently dismantling a digital signage display with her bare hands, and my shift doesn't end for another four hours!"

Brenda: "Four hours?! Hmp! Perfect! That gives me just enough time to rewrite the store's inventory network! Someone get me a cold bag of grapes and a Linux boot drive! I'm about to grape all over this retail establishment! WOAH!"

* * *

Shawn: "Okay, the situation has completely dissolved. The loose eggs Misty put on the belt just squeezed into the conveyor mechanism and now the whole register is emitting a high-pitched burning rubber smell. Colin, I need an exit strategy."

Colin: "You don't have one. According to the store layout, your only escape is the main aisle, but Brenda just barricaded it with three motorized scooters and a display rack of cheap patio chairs."

Brenda (screaming over the electronics department intercom): "Lock the doors! Nobody leaves until I find the root directory of this entire establishment! Hmp! You think you can trap me in a retail store?! I taught digital design for fifteen years, I will dismantle this whole fucking network piece by piece! Pshit!"

Shawn: "Brenda, shut the fuck up! You are going to get me fired again, and I actually need this job! Go back to Waukesha!"

Brenda: "Fired?! Wowowowow! They can't fire you if I delete the entire employee database! Look at this monitor—it's freaking out! It can't handle the Brenda tag! I'm typing in pure Savickey'n right now and the screen is literally turning purple! Grapes are power! WOAHH!"

Misty: "Ehm, Shawn? My toaster is starting to sparks... ehm, yeah, from an electrical engineering perspective, putting cracked eggs inside a clearance appliance is causing a small localized fire... Sad Misty noises..."

Colin (switching flawlessly into Shawn's exact imitation of Senora Feudner): "¡Hola, hola, hola, hola! Diego, look at the bakery! The fire alarms are going off! ¡Ay dios mio, look at the negative energy filling the room!"

Shawn: "Colin, why the fuck are you doing the Senora voice now? I'm the one trapped in the burning building!"

Colin: "Because it's entertaining, Shawn. Keep scanning."

Kaila / Señora F (shouting in real life from the next aisle): "¡Diego! Stop imitating me! There is a crazy purple gorilla throwing display laptops at the store manager! This is completely uncalled for!"

Brenda: "Who are you calling a gorilla, you talking burrito?! Hmp! You want a piece of Savic discipline?! Come over here!" (Massive crashing sounds over the PA system) "Yeah! That's right! I just clocked the asset protection guy with a rolling office chair! Let's fucking go! Who's next?!"

Shelley (bursting out of the back office, completely losing her mind): "What the hell is going on with the electronics wall, eh?! Why is every television screen showing the Wangen family tree?! Shawn, get your fat ass away from register four and go tackle that old woman, right? Pshit!"

Shawn (imitating Brenda perfectly): "Wrong folder, dumbass! She's running on pure fucking greatness, she doesn't run on electricity! WOWWWWWOW!"

Colin: "Nice impression, Shawn, but seriously, Brenda just grabbed a fire extinguisher and she's spraying the tech desk to 'ground the mainframe.' The smoke is mixing with Misty's egg fire. It looks like a war zone."

Misty: "Ehm, yes... the toxicity levels are none of my concern, but my cardiovascular health is severely compromised... Ehm, I am going to lie down on the conveyor belt now... Ehmehmehm..."

Shawn: "Misty, get off the belt! You're triggering the weight sensor! Goddammit, the sirens are outside. The police are definitely here this time."

Brenda (voice echoing raw and unamplified across the entire store): "Tell them to bring grapes! I don't play games! I'm going to kill the main characters and take over Highway 164! Hmp! My middle name is God, remember?! You can't arrest a deity, nerds!"

* * *

Shawn: "Okay, well, the entire pharmacy department is filled with fire extinguisher foam, Misty is literally asleep on my conveyor belt, and I can hear the police sirens getting closer. Colin, we need a literal miracle to get out of this Meijer before the SWAT team blocks the exit."

Colin: "Don't worry, I just called my great uncle Karl. He's putting his coffee down and patchin' into the line right now."

Karl (cracking onto the phone, sounding remarkably cheerful for a 76-year-old): "Hello? Colin? Is this the local area network? My goodness, this reminds me of the time I was teaching a non-Euclidean geometry seminar at UW-Waukesha back in 1984. A student tried to integrate a polynomial using a basic Taylor series expansion, and I told him, 'Listen, pal, you're trying to use a fork to eat soup!' Funniest thing I ever saw. Reminds me of the radical faculty strikes in Madison during the late '60s. Anyway, what's the mathematical emergency?"

Shawn: "Karl, Brenda Savic is running on 'pure fucking greatness' and dismantling the electronics department. We need a way to neutralize her before she deletes the store's entire database."

Karl: "Ah, Brenda! Not that crow! The classic variable of unchecked hubris. Let me run the calculations here before anything more goes tits-up. If we take her oaf like mass, multiply it by the velocity of her ego, and divide it by the structural integrity of her 'Savic tag,' we get a statistical anomaly. According to the laws of algebraic topology, she cannot be stopped by standard retail logic. But! If we introduce her historical antithesis into the equation... yes, the probability of complete structural collapse reaches 99.4%."

Colin: "Her historical antithesis? You don't mean..."

Shawn (in a perfect, terrified imitation of Brenda): "No... no, not her! Not the basketball court! Pshit! I can handle the tech department, but I can't handle the perimeter defense! WOWWWWWOW!"

Rhonda Watton (distantly echoing from the parking lot lobby): "OOHHHHOOOOAAH!
OOHHHHOOOOAAH!"

Brenda (screaming over the PA system, her voice cracking with pure panic): "WHO LET THE APEX PREDATOR INTO THE BUILDING?! Misty, did you call her?! Hmp! You fucking narc! She's gonna ruin my grape harvest!"

Misty (waking up briefly on the conveyor belt): "Ehm, actually, Brenda... my phone is gone, but from a defensive strategy perspective, Ronda's full-court press is mathematically unguardable... Ehm, yeah, sad Misty noises..."

Karl: "Heh, she's right, you know! It's like the time I went to an exotic jazz fusion concert in Chicago—totally radical rhythms, completely unpredictable! Ronda's movement patterns follow a perfect Fibonacci sequence. Look out the window, Colin! She's crossing the timeline!"

Rhonda Watton (bursting through the automatic sliding doors, dribbling an industrial-grade leather basketball): "OOHHHHOOOOAAH! You thought you could escape the varsity squad, Brenda?! You're out of bounds! Administrative suspension, baby!"

Brenda: "Stay back! I have a fire extinguisher and I know how to align digital margins! Hmp! I'm the grapeist! My middle name is God!"

Rhonda: "Your middle name is 'Benchwarmer!'"

(CRACK! Rhonda launches a chest pass from lane seven, sending the basketball directly through the air. It ricochets perfectly off a display of organic bananas, banks off a hanging aisle sign, and strikes Brenda square in the forehead.)

Brenda: "AUGH! Collateral damage! My... my Savic Operating System... is experiencing... a fatal error... woah..." (THUD. Brenda collapses backward into a pile of display laptops, completely knocked out.)

Colin: "Holy shit. She just hit a double-bank shot from forty yards out."

Karl: "Incredible! The angle of incidence perfectly matched the angle of reflection! Absolutely beautiful mathematics. It reminds me of a student I had in '79 who tried to argue that a circle had four corners. I gave him an F, but I admired his radical imagination! Truly hilarious times."

Shawn: "Okay, well, the threat has been neutralized, Ronda is currently spinning the basketball on her finger over Brenda's unconscious body, and my shift ends in exactly two minutes. Colin, I am grabbing my backpack and walking out the door."

Colin: "The mainframe is safe. Let's get the fuck out of here."

* * *

Shawn: "Okay, well, the police are currently trying to figure out why an elderly woman is unconscious in a pile of smashed electronics, Rhonda is cutting down the netting from the Meijer floral department to take as a trophy, and I have officially clocked out. Colin, I am stepping into the fresh air. It is finally over."

Colin: "The tracking app says you're in the clear. You're crossing the crosswalk. Honestly, survival was about a 6% probability today, so you beat the odds."

Karl: "Oh, probabilities are a funny thing, Colin! It completely reminds me of a faculty meeting we had at UW-Waukesha back in 1991. The dean wanted to calculate the exact statistical likelihood of the student lounge running out of coffee during finals week. I stood up and said, 'Sir, with all due respect, that's like trying to calculate the volume of a jazz saxophone solo using standard calculus!' The whole department died laughing. Absolutely radical times. Then we went out and listened to some experimental Yugoslavian synth-pop. Truly hilarious memory."

Shawn: "Karl, your life sounds like a fever dream, but your math literally saved me from a retail hostage situation. I appreciate it."

Karl: "Anytime, pal! Keep studying those honking algorithms. If you ever need to calculate the trajectory of another rogue athletic educator, you know where to find my landline. Peace out, radicals!" (Karl cracks off the line with a cheerful click)

Shawn: "Unbelievable. I'm walking to my car now. My head is pounding, my ears are ringing, and I swear I can still smell burning eggs."

Misty (suddenly sounding right next to Shawn's ear, extremely loud): "EHM, SHAWN?! WAIT FOR ME!!"

Shawn: "What the fuck?! Misty, why are you in my back seat? How did you even get in here?"

Misty (sitting in the back of Shawn's car, eating a slightly charred breakfast pastry): "Ehm, well, while the police were distracting Rhonda, I used a low-speed tactical roll out the pharmacy entrance and slid directly through your open trunk! Ehm, yeah, from a passenger perspective, your vehicle is remarkably spacious... Uh, also, I think Brenda's ghost is still in your system network... look at your dashboard screen."

Colin: "Wait, look at the screen? What's it doing?"

(The digital dashboard monitor on Shawn's car suddenly flashes bright purple. A low, distorted grinding noise emits from the speakers, followed by a familiar static crunch)

Brenda (weakly, but with pure, unadulterated malice over the car speakers): "Hmp... you think... a varsity chest pass can stop the Savic tag? Pshit! Wrong folder, dumbasses! I just uploaded my entire consciousness into your vehicle's Bluetooth mainframe! I'm running on pure fucking greatness now! WOWWWWWOW!"

Shawn: "No. No, no, no, absolutely not. I am not driving a possessed vehicle."

Colin (switching flawlessly into Brenda's signature laugh): "Hueheuheh, looks like you're carpooling with the grapeist now, Shawn! You better pull over and buy some grapes, or she's gonna lock your brakes on Highway 164!"

Brenda: "You betcha, Colin! Someone tell him he's an idiot! Hmp! My middle name is God, and this car runs on PURE GREATNESS! WOAH!"

Shawn: "Okay, well, like all good things, my sanity has officially come to an end. I am turning off the ignition, I am throwing my keys into a bush, and I am walking the six miles back to my vintage basement. Colin, do not call me tomorrow."

Colin: "I'll record the walking updates. See ya, Shawn."

Misty: "Ehm, Shawn? Can we stop for brunch on the way? Ehm, yeah..."

[THE END]